ZAPORIZHZHIA HOSPITAL RECEIVES WOUND VAC MACHINES
Thanks to you, urgently needed portable VAC machines and clamps were delivered to St. Nicholas Hospital in Zaporizhzhia. Vacuum-assisted closure (VAC) is an innovative way to close the edges of a wound through suction. The technique promotes healing by helping reduce fluid retention after surgery. These critical medical supplies are used to rescue the lives and limbs of people injured in the war. Doctors like these machines because of their small size and portability.

Mexico City Refugee Hub
This spring, we served over 500 refugees living in our Mexico City refugee camp, 350 of whom were children. These families were awaiting processing via the Uniting for Ukraine program to gain entry into the United States.

The hub was run by multiple organizations, including the Mexican government, Nova Ukraine, and United with Ukraine, as well as other charities, churches and individuals.

Thanks to your help, our volunteers on the ground were able to purchase food, medicine, toys, bedding, and other items needed to get through Mexico’s hot days and frigid nights.

Volunteers worked tirelessly to assist refugees in filling paperwork and locating sponsors. The camp in Mexico City completed operation on June 1, 2022.

EVACUATING RESIDENTS OF EASTERN UKRAINE

If it wasn’t for brave evacuation volunteers, Liudmyla and her family might not have survived.

Her evacuation to safety happened in the nick of time. Liudmyla holds on tight to her infant grandchild as she boards a bus to safety with her daughter, the baby, and her teenage grandson. She recounts how Angels of Salvation, a volunteer organization funded by Nova Ukraine, picked them up from the embattled village of Svyatohirs’k exactly one hour before a Russian rocket blew up their home to smithereens.

“We had already evacuated from Bohorodychne,” Elena recalls. “When the war started we left and came to Svyatohirs’k. And then things became so terrible there that after last night we decided to leave.” Shortly after speaking with volunteers, Elena received news that her house had been hit by a direct rocket strike.

If it wasn’t for Angels of Salvation, Liudmyla and her family might not have survived. It’s for the sake of families like hers that the 60 volunteers working at Angels of Salvation risk their lives every day, driving to and from areas of active fighting in eastern Ukraine.

Since the start of the war, Angels of Salvation has evacuated more than 15,000 people and delivered them to safety in cities in central and western Ukraine.
When the war started, Sergey Stech was a small business owner in the Chernihiv region, running a wood processing factory. Earlier this year, his factory was completely destroyed by the occupying Russian Army and several of his machines and vehicles were stolen.

Sergey and his team evacuated to Kyiv, where they decided to start an emergency rescue crew. With Nova Ukraine as their main financial sponsor, they formed a community coalition called “Helping Hand” which is made up of construction workers and professional search and rescue coordinators.

After intensive training and cooperation with the Ukrainian military, emergency rescue and debris clearing crew Helping Hand has become the first volunteer group to enter Bucha and Irpin.

The volunteer initiative consists of over 100 volunteers made up of construction and search and rescue experts and has repaired over 40 homes to date.

Infrastructure

The damage caused by Russian troops has already been severe, and the road to rebuild will be a long one. But with your support, our partners in Ukraine are up to the challenge.

How your support is used:

- Obtaining heavy duty equipment for debris removal
- Equipping Helping Hand team members with helmets, gloves, and protective footwear
- Purchasing lumber, sheetrock, and other raw materials for reconstruction
I arrived in Bucha on April 3 and the atmosphere was one of horror: bodies of Ukrainians shot at point-blank range and burned cars in which entire families tried to escape. There were piles of burned tanks and armored vehicles — all this on the background of a destroyed city.

What I saw felt like a blow to the head. I have never felt anything like it. Such powerful feelings leave a deep mark for life.

It is painful to see how the occupation turns our land to ashes. It is difficult to find

We will work until we rebuild our Ukraine, no matter how long it takes.
—Sergey Stetch

But the work we do gives us strength. Everyone believes in what we do and lives by this idea.

When we rebuilt the hospital roof and it started raining and we realized that the place is not flooding any longer ... when a person today can sleep in his garage, the only part of the house that survived ... these small victories give us great power to act.

But the greatest reward for me is the hope in the eyes of the people we help. We’re just doing it for peace.

With your support, we could do more!

To expand the scope and effectiveness of their work, Helping Hand needs more heavy equipment, such as:

- Hydraulic Jacks
- Backhoes
- Heavy Cranes
- Bulldozers
- Trucks
